12/29/2014	Arkansas Game and Fish Commission	Council to Advance Hunting and the Shooting Sport. The lack of a RBFF equivalent for hunting and shooting has long been a concern for the conservation community. The immediate challenge is finding adequate financial resources to staff and build enough organizational capacity to begin functioning as a Council. Moreover, once these initial steps are fulfilled, a plan for long-term financial support and viability can then be created and implemented. The establishment of the CAHSS is a major step to help the states keep the North American Model of Wildlife Conservation working well into the future.
