

Marketing & Redistribution (AR State Surplus) Announces New Partnership with GovDeals.com

Effective September 4, 2012, Marketing and Redistribution (M&R) AR State Surplus will transition its online auctions services from ARStateSurplus.com to GovDeals.com. This move will better serve our customers and return more money to the State of Arkansas.

GovDeals.com is an online auction service that sells government surplus from across the United States. There are already other Arkansas governmental entities selling surplus via this auction service. Customers interested in bidding on surplus property should register with GovDeals.com. Anyone can view the items listed on GovDeals.com, but you must be registered to bid on any item. Please note that GovDeals' Terms & Conditions are specific to its site and must be adhered to once you have registered.

Moving to this auction provider will allow M&R to post more items for sale. One of M&R's goals is to offer more items for sale in various locations throughout the State, not just in the Little Rock area.

Watch for more information on GovDeals.com and we will continue to keep you informed in the coming weeks.
